To receive the latest MTA news including snow route detours, sign up for our eNews service at nashvillemta.org.

When it snows in Nashville, some streets and hills may be too hazardous for driving. For your safety, MTA has developed snow routes, which are detours set up on some of the routes to avoid icy streets. The result is safe and reliable service for MTA customers.

Please note, not all routes have snow detours. If a route is not listed, buses on that route will not detour. However, safety is the top concern during inclement weather, and emergency changes may be required based on operating conditions.

MTA alerts the local news media that snow route detours are in effect and posts snow route information on the nashvillemta.org website whenever the system implements its snow route detours. In addition, the information is posted on the electronic signs at Music City Central and sent out via social media.
